It normally takes us three months to assess your submission.

If you don't receive a reply from us in three months after sending your query, you may assume that we are unable to proceed with the work.

Post-submission Scenario

On finding your work in line with our vision and interest, we will ask you to submit the complete manuscript.

If we accept your manuscript, you will be formally informed, following which the terms will be agreed upon and contracts will be signed.

However, asking for the submission of complete manuscript should not be a reason to assume that it will be published. It simply means that we would prefer to review the complete manuscript before making a final decision.

The right to acceptance and rejection of proposal rests undisputably with Candelabra Publishing House. The company will not provide any reason for rejection.

Please ensure you keep a copy of your submission, as Candelabra Publishing House cannot be held responsible for any loss or damage to materials provided. Kindly note it will not be possible for us to return the manuscripts submitted – whether digitally or in physical form.

Submissions are non-returnable regardless of their outcome. In the event of non-acceptance, the material will be disposed of, and no further correspondence will be entertained regarding the submission.
